

Americanist Speaker Series Presents

KATE MARSHALL:
"NOVELS BY ALIENS: NONHUMAN NARRATION AND AMERICAN REALISM"

Kate Marshall's current project examines the relations between contemporary literary experiments in nonhuman narration and theoretical debates about the category of the nonhuman, and shows how these forms of thinking and writing have an important and overlooked history in the old, weird American fiction of the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries.

February 2nd 7 PM

FHI, Smith Warehouse, Bay 4
114 South Buchanan Boulevard
Refreshments provided!

Kate Marshall is Associate Professor at the University of Notre Dame. Her work focuses on narrative, systems, and mediation in American fiction from the late nineteenth century to the present. She is the author of Corridor: Media Architectures in American Fiction (University of Minnesota Press, 2013), winner of the Dorothy Lee Award for Outstanding Scholarship in the Ecology of Culture.

Like the Americanist Speaker Series on Facebook!