

Undergraduate Research Assistant Application

The HHIVE Undergraduate Research Assistant (URA) program requires a 5-hour a week commitment that includes attending bi-weekly lab meetings, working on HHIVE-related tasks in the lab, and regularly checking in with the HHIVE URA coordinator and/or project PI.

HHIVE URA projects are primarily self-directed, so prospective URAs should be self-starters who can work independently and in a group. Current HHIVE needs include marketing and promotion of HHIVE people, events, and projects; writing content for the HHIVE blog (covering events and/or analysis of an issue); researching funding, publication, and presentation opportunities; conducting literature reviews on topics related to HHIVE projects; and supporting faculty and graduate student research projects.

All majors and minors are encouraged to apply; however, URA applicants must complete (or currently be enrolled in) one of the following courses to be eligible to apply:

- ENGL 071H: Healers & Patients
- ENGL 163: Introduction to Health Humanities
- ENGL 268/268H: Medicine, Literature, and Culture

Before submitting an application, please attend at least one lab meeting.

Contact Information

Name:

UNC Email:

Academic History

Year: First-Year Sophomore Junior Senior

Major(s):

Minor(s):

Cumulative GPA:

Health Humanities Coursework*	Term	Grade

Note: URA applicants must complete (or be enrolled in) at least one of the following courses in order to apply: ENGL 071H: Healers & Patients, ENGL 163: Introduction to Health Humanities, or ENGL 268/268H: Medicine, Literature, and Culture.

Relevant Experience & Skills

Describe your skills in the following areas: qualitative data analysis, literature reviews, graphic design, website building, video or photo-editing, and project management.

Describe your experience doing humanities research and/or working in a healthcare, research, or laboratory setting.

Goals

Why are you interested in the HHIVE Lab?

What are your academic and professional goals?

Please send your completed application to hhive@unc.edu for consideration.
We will review applications on a rolling basis through the first 5 weeks of each academic term.