

Website Bio and Photo, HHIVE Lab Elizabeth Alene

Elizabeth is a freshman Morehead Cain Scholar and Honors student from Saint Paul, Minnesota, with a keen interest in health policy, literature, and medical humanities. She is double majoring in Global Studies (concentration: Global Health and Environment) and Public Policy with a minor in Chinese Studies. She has previous extensive experience in the fields of behavioral neuroscience and public health research through working in labs and health institutes. At the HHIVE lab, Elizabeth is excited to use a multidimensional approach to examine health humanities, and understand how personal narratives can inform medicine as a whole.
